

Yearbook / Journalism

Our Liberty depends on the freedom of the press.

~ Thomas Jefferson

What is this course about?

This course has two different components. Component one is to plan and assemble our school's yearbook. Component two is to learn the skill of journalistic writing, with the intent of initiating a long-standing school newspaper.

What is the purpose of this course?

Creating a yearbook is an essential tool for maintaining the spirit of our school. This is a very important task, one that is often overlooked.

Journalism, on the other hand, is vital to the spirit of democracy. Without good, investigative research and writing our populace will not know the truth about our world, our leaders, and means of civic responsibility. Thus, is very important to know what journalism is and possess the skills to do it well.
